The danger signal is thus given, and the waste of steam is avoided, to say nothing of the racket. Any engineer who whistles hereafter, when in Poughkeepsie, loses his situation on the Hu son river

WILLIAM C. RALSTON'S handsome widow has wasted $120,000 of the $175,-100 rettled upon her from the ruin of her husband's California estate three years ago, and her frieuds have applied to the Sau Francisco courts for the appointment of a Yuardian to prevent the squandering of the remainder. Numerous adventurers have found Mrs. Ralston a willing dupe, and a year ago the caused quite a scandal by enticing a New Yorker from his wife and family.

THE total admissions to the late Paris exhibitien were 16,032,725, against a total for the Centennial of 9.910.966. The exhibition at Paris, however, was open more than a month longer than the one at Philadelphia, while the actual  receipts at the latter place were fifty per cent. larger than at the former. This year at Paris, as compared with 1867, shows nearly double the number of admissions, and an increase of seventyfive per cent. in receipts. In spite o this increase the exhibitions held during the empire involved an expenditure of considerably less money.
